DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

1. Claims 19-28, 30, 31 and 33-36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Heinz et al. WO 99 21261 A.

Heinz et al. teaches a hybrid drive system for a motor vehicle, comprising:

an internal combustion engine having a drive shaft and an engine management system;

and at least one speed-controlled electric machine coupled to the drive shaft of the internal combustion engine during idling; wherein, during idling, the engine management system controls the internal combustion engine in one of open and closed loop as a function of power demands Of an electrical system of the motor vehicle; a system for determining the power demands of the electrical system of the motor vehicle during idling; the system for determining the power demands of the electrical system of the motor vehicle during idling includes at least one device for at least one of measuring a terminal voltage and determining a state of charge of a battery of the motor vehicle; the system for determining the power demands of the electrical system of the motor vehicle during idling includes at least one device for detecting turned-on loads associated with the electrical system and calculating a nominal power of the turned-on loads; a pre-control unit for converting the power demands of the electrical system of the motor vehicle during idling into one of a desired torque and a setpoint torque of the internal combustion engine; at least one device for measuring a power output of the at least one speed-controlled electric machine; the system for determining the power demands of the electrical system of the motor vehicle includes a comparator device for comparing a power output of the at least one speed-controlled electric machine calculated from the power demands of the electrical system and a measured power output of the at least one speed-controlled electric machine; a slow controller for adjusting one of the desired torque and the setpoint torque of the internal combustion engine depending on an output variable of the comparator device. The method for idle speed control of a hybrid drive or a motor vehicle is also taught.

The provision of a hybrid system that is speed control with the aid of an electric motor during idling is old and well known and would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made.

Allowable Subject Matter

2. Claims 29 and 32 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

3. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP

Art Unit: 3618

§ 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
